wrapping up valuable articles when discovered.

By sliding down the banisters on two flights of stairs Mrs. Fergus reached the lower hall as quickly as the men she was pursuing, and grabbed one of them. As she did so the man turned, delivering her a stunning blow in the face, which knocked her down. The janitor, John Yates, and his wife heard the noise and they ran up from the basement, reaching the main hall just as the burglar knocked Mrs. Fergus down. Yates captured the man, but the second man broke away and escaped.
